

Whats' Happening this Week

Greetings

I hope that all is well in your bubbles and you are enjoying this enforced family time. This has been an opportunity to take time together without the outside pressures that are so much part of our daily life.

It has been great to hear about the wonderful home learning that is happening. The teachers, children and families have got stuck in and met the challenges posed in a positive way. We now have sustainable routines in place as we forge ahead under Alert Level 3 for an unknown time.

On Wednesday school opens only for those children who need to attend school because either:

- . both parents are required to work away from home or
- . there is no one in the home older than 14 to supervise the child or
- . there is no extended family bubble to enable the child to be supervised at home.

The quality home learning will continue to be provided and supported by the teachers. Those children who have to be supervised at school will undertake this home learning in the same manner.

Yesterday a survey was sent home and is to be completed by 10:00pm tonight with regards the needs of your child next week. It is vital that you complete this so that we can make arrangements to put in place what we need to do to keep our school community as safe as we can in the current circumstances. The prime minister said that children should learn from home if they are able to. Please respect this advice.

These are challenging times and we all have to do whatever we can to get on top of Covid 19 so we can quickly return to whatever is the new normal.

Keep safe.

God bless you all.

Best wishes
